Pacis Publishers, 2012

The compelling and distinctive voice of Laura Eklund is vividly captured in this collection of selected poems that reveal all the stylized beauty of her unique persona captured on page. More than simply personal expression, The White Ibis embodies from beginning to end Eklund's inner desire for oneness with all things. Her poems are often a calling to merge with nature, with all things exterior to the self, imbued and intersected by multiple conceptual elements of being. Their emotional consistency and the directness of her search for experiential wholeness are touchstones throughout her work, always focused, always sensual, showing the force of an inner life continuously seeking marriage with all things. In perpetual states of passion and feeling in search of self-realization, her body is often the conduit to knowing and knowledge, desire and its fulfillment, pleasure and its realization, her poems revealing a highly perceptual core of desire seeking recognition and connection to new desire. Brilliant and unique in their evocation of nature, The White Ibis charts profound, abstract dimensions of being in constant transformation, always affirming love and her deepest affinities to the world.
